Christa D'Angelica brings more than seven years of experience representing clients in various stages of civil litigation to Hickey Smith. She has successfully defended municipalities in Federal US 1983 suits and wrongful death actions, as well as building owners, general contractors, and municipal agencies in New York Labor Law actions.

Before joining Hickey Smith, Christa worked as an associate for a New York law firm specializing in product liability and toxic tort litigation, premises liability claims, and a diverse array of defamation, employment law, municipal law, corporate law, contract law, environmental law, civil rights law, and tax foreclosure cases in New York and Connecticut state, appellate and federal courts. .

Prior to her law firm employment, Christa served as an assistant law clerk for a judge with the New York State Supreme Court, where she conducted legal research and composed draft opinions on a broad range of civil matters.

Christa specializes in creative problem solving of complex legal issues through comprehensive legal research and the composition of memoranda for novel issues in civil law. She brings significant experience in drafting briefs and arguing appeals before appellate courts to Hickey Smith.
